

An aerial photograph of the Victoria Falls in Zimbabwe. The Zambezi River flows from the top left, through a series of islands and rapids, and then cascades over the edge of a cliff into a deep gorge. The water is white and foamy as it falls. The surrounding landscape is a mix of green forest and brownish savanna. The sky is clear and blue.

Words fall short when trying to capture the grandeur of Victoria Falls. Its Kololo name is famed, 'Mosi-oa-Tunya', the 'Smoke that Thunders'. The falls span nearly two kilometers and drops about 108 meters. It's the largest waterfall in the world and is a UNESCO Natural Heritage Site.

Victoria Falls straddles the countries of Zambia and Zimbabwe, almost halfway along the Zambezi River. Our tours will take you into the wonder of this region, either on foot and in the spray of the falls or on a sunset boat cruise, where a famed African sunset awaits. The 'flight of the angels' is a bucket list adventure that offers a completely different view of this natural spectacle.
